

Free confidential legal helpline for women who have been affected by violence or abuse

FREEPHONE:

08088 010 789

Open every Wednesday 1.30 – 4.30pm

Promoting justice for women

The Scottish Women's Rights Centre offers free legal information and advice to women who have been affected by violence or abuse.

We offer a safe space where you can talk in confidence with trained legal helpline workers, who are also able to put you in touch with support services if this would be helpful.

SWRC can offer you information on your rights and on what to expect if you are engaged in the civil and criminal justice processes.

You can access the SWRC through the helpline and where available through local drop in services, offered in safe women only premises. For more information on local drop in services please contact the SWRC Helpline.

Funded by The VOLANT Charitable Trust through Foundation Scotland

Foundation Scotland

Where philanthropy meets community

Funded by the Scottish Government through the Scottish Legal Aid Board

The Scottish Government
Riaghaltas na h-Alba